A glance over the hall recognizes the fact that the attendance is very large, in fact larger than any tormer occasion since the grand body was organized; fully three hundred delegates and visitors being present.
There are many more gentlemen than ladies, but the cheerful faces of the latter gives pressige to the organization; and indeed, it is one of the grand features of the temperance cause to have the presence of the ladies in an occasion like this; to lend their help in the great work which this body has before them. Among the gentlemen, young men predominate, but there are many old "warhorses," who have stood by the cause in Texas from its beginning. There sits the staid old worker, who for many years has watched the onward growth of the temperance move in this and other states. From its infancy through childhood to vigoroumanhood have these men watched the progress of this great work. At times it looked as if it was doomed to die or sink into oblivion, but to-day it has raised its mighty arm in the great state of Texas, and will, during the next canvass make its weight fielt in selecting officers to govern our state. Thibody have a look of determination about them, and if something don't move before it they propose to make it move.

Brother W. D. Jackson introduced Brother James I. Moore, who delivered the address of welcome, and on behalf of the city of Waco, bade the delegates and members of the grand body a hearty welcome to the hospitalities of our people.

Mr. J. Swan, of Kosse, replied to the address, and returned the thanks of the delegates to citizens of Waco for their welcome, and said the fair and beautiful city of schools and churches was known far and wide for its hospitality, and in speaking for the delegates and visitors, he said they
